YOUNG MINDS MATTER – PRODUCTS, DATA SOURCES AND ACCESS LINKS

Results from Young Minds Matter (YMM) are being released in a number of ways. These include but are not restricted to the following.

Product/source	Internet link
Young Minds Matter website. This is the principal website for the survey. It contains general information about the survey as well as a User's Guide and a link to web pages containing survey results. See listings below for more details.	www.youngmindsmatter.org.au
The Mental Health of Children and Adolescents: Report on the second Australian Child and Adolescent Survey of Mental Health and Wellbeing – available on the Department of Health website. This detailed report released by the Minister for Health and Minister for Sport, the Hon. Sussan Ley MP	www.health.gov.au/internet/main/publishing.nsf/Content/mental-pubs-m-child2
Survey Results Query Tool – accessible via the YMM website. This facility allows users to create downloadable Excel-based tables from menus of pre-determined variables. This tool is simple to use and does not require any statistical expertise.	www.youngmindsmatterresults.org.au
Survey User's Guide – accessible via the YMM website. This comprehensive guide describes the survey background and design, survey methodology, diagnostic tools, scales and measures, data collection processes, and output files.	www.youngmindsmatter.org.au/information/for-researchers/ www.ada.edu.au/social-science/acasmhw
Confidentialised Unit Record File (CURF), Library of formats, CURF Technical Manual, Metadata spreadsheets and CURF Data Access Protocol – accessible via the Australian Data Archive (ADA) website under the ADA Social Science sub-archive. ADA access processes apply. Designed for more sophisticated users, this data source is intended for statistical research purposes. It is released under a special restricted access, which requires	www.ada.edu.au/social-science/acasmhw CURF Data Access Protocol also available at: www.youngmindsmatter.org.au/information/for-researchers/ Citations to be sent to: youngmindsmatter.SMB@telethonkids.org.au

users to have obtained ethics approval for their research prior to seeking access to the CURF. Researchers are also encouraged to send citations for their published research to the Young Minds Matter team for inclusion in this Data Access Statement.
Survey Questionnaires and Consent Forms – available via the Australian Data Archive website through their general data access processes. Also available on the YMM website.	www.ada.edu.au/social-science/acasmhw www.youngmindsmatter.org.au/information/for-researchers/
Field Report – this comprehensive report was produced by the data collection agency, Roy Morgan Research. Note: any material considered commercial-in-confidence has been omitted.	www.ada.edu.au/social-science/acasmhw
Measuring Severity of Mental Disorders with the YMM Parent/Carer-reported Impact Items: Technical Report – accompanies the CURF documentation on the ADA and YMM websites. This document describes the calibration of the parent/carer reported impact items developed for use in the YMM. The impact items were part of the diagnostic assessment for mental health disorder and were administered only when children reach at least the diagnostic sub-threshold for the disorder.	www.ada.edu.au/social-science/acasmhw www.youngmindsmatter.org.au/information/for-researchers/
Detailed Unit Record File (DURF) – maintained by the Telethon Kids Institute under restricted access provisions. This complete file of survey responses is designed for those users who require more detail than available from the CURF. Customised analysis of the DURF can be requested and will be provided on a cost recovery basis. The DURF Data Access Protocol explains the procedure required for submitting a data request.	DURF Data Access Protocol available at: www.youngmindsmatter.org.au/information/for-researchers/ DURF Data Request Form available at: www.youngmindsmatter.org.au/information/for-researchers/ Email data requests to: youngmindsmatter.SMB@telethonkids.org.au
